Open Qualifying Round 9 – Vincent Li v Kortai

With three rounds to go in the Open qualifying, Vincent Li (Hong Kong) was in a three-way battle for two places in the knockouts, while Kortai (Korea/Taipei) lay fourth and would need a huge finish to sneak into the top two.

values were in clubs so of little or no value in a diamond contract and the 4♦ sign-off ended the auction.

There was little to the play when trumps split evenly and the spade was onside so Sung made an over-trick for +150 without breathing very hard.

For Vincent Li, K.F. Mak passed over the 2♣ overcall, and passed again when W.K. Lai reopened with a double. Mak led the king of diamonds and switched to the ♣Q, seeing that declarer would want to make small trumps by ruffing. Man Suk Hwang won the ace of clubs and conceded a diamond. Mak won the queen and played the jack of clubs, ducked, then the ten, again ducked. Now Mak switched back to diamonds, Hwang ruffing and leading a spade to dummy's ten. Lai won the queen and played his last diamond, declarer pitching a heart from both hands, and now had to open up hearts, which he did by leading the queen. Hwang won dummy's king and returned the ten to the jack and ace and had just the king of clubs to come; down three for –500 and 8 IMPs to Vincent Li.

Both Easts opened 1♦ and both Souths overcalled 2♣. For Kortai, Hyunghae Sung now competed with 2♦ on the West cards. When Vincent Li supported his partner's clubs Sung might have had a moment's thought of collecting a penalty but, of course, Patrick Huang was void in clubs so was never going to pass 3♣. He bid 3♥ as a game try but Sung's outside Vincent Li passed the North hand at his first turn but made a balancing double when the bidding came back to him and Tsang left it in. Sung now ran to 2♥ and Huang gave preference back to spades when that got doubled.

Li led the seven of spades to dummy's ace and Sung led a diamond towards his ten, Tsang going in with the ace and returning a low club. Li won the ten and continued with the king then jack of clubs to the ace and now Tsang went back to trumps. When Li now won the ace of hearts he could play a third trump so there was no ruff in the dummy and the contract was down one for –50.

Lai opened INT and Mak used Stayman. What Eun-joo Cho intended by the double of 2♣ is unclear but it appears to have been taken as showing clubs, as Hwang competed with 3♣ over Mak's 2♠.

Mak led the singleton diamond. Hwang won dummy's king and played on trumps but the INT opening suggested that East was more likely to hold the queen and king then run the jack duly lost to that card. Mak returned a heart so declarer played low, losing to the king, and Lai cashed the ♠A then played the queen of diamonds, which was covered by the ace and ruffed. Mak played king and another Identical forcing no trump auctions saw the two Souths declare 3♥. Both Wests led the ten of spades and both Easts overtook then played three more rounds of spades in hope of promoting an extra trump trick for partner. In practice, declarer pitched a diamond from hand and a club from dummy as West ruffed with his trump trick. That was that – declarer won the diamond return with the ace, played the top trumps and ruffed a club in dummy; flat at +140.

The chosen defence would have succeeded had West held, say, ♥K10x instead of his actual ♥Q9x, and in that case declarer would have been more likely to hold the ♣Q instead of the jack for his opening bid. On the actual layout, however, a switch to the ten of clubs would have been more effective. The defenders still need to be careful, as West can be squeezed in the minors if they are not.

Could your partnership signal effectively to get this hand right? It doesn't look easy because West isn't sure that he can afford a club switch if East has only the ten and not also the nine.

Lai bid his powerful heart suit and never mentioned the clubs – presumably 1♣ promised only two cards. Hwang raised to 2♦ and Mak made a support double to show three hearts. Now Cho bid a quiet 3♦ and bought the contract. The opening lead was the nine of clubs round to the ace-queen. Cho won and played ace then jack of diamonds, ducked, so had to lose one diamond, one heart and one club; +130.

Huang ignored his four weak hearts and made a preemptive club raise. When Tsang was willing to support diamonds at the three level, Li firstly took a stab at 3NT then, when Huang saved in 4♣, took the push to 4NT. Had dummy provided the ♥K instead of the ♥Q, that would have been just fine. As it was, however, Huang was pretty sure that declarer was well prepared for a club lead so instead led the jack of spades. That was covered by queen and king and Sung duly switched to the two of clubs to the queen and king. Huang returned a low club to jack and ace and Li took his only shot, laying down the ace of diamonds in hope of finding a bare king. No such luck. Huang knew that five down would be an excellent result for his side so, just to make absolutely certain that there could be no mix-up, discarded the ten of clubs to tell partner he could cash out. When Sung won the next diamond, three clubs and two spades held declarer to five tricks for down five and –250. That was worth 9 IMPs to Kortai.

Li/Tsang had a painless uncontested auction to 2♠. Huang led the king of diamonds, won by Li who led a spade to the queen then cashed the ace, discovering that there was still a little work to do. He played the ♣J next and Huang let this run to his partner's ace. Sung returned the jack then ten of diamonds so Li ruffed and played the queen of clubs. Huang won and exited with his last club and Li called for the ten and, when that dropped the nine, played the ♣8 and pitched a heart loser from hand. Huang ruffed and exited with his last spade so made the ♥K at the end; eight tricks for +110.

At the other table, Mak ignored all the rules about second-seat pre-empts supposedly being sound and opened with a multi 2♦. When Cho overcalled 2♠, perhaps Hwang should have passed despite the two aces – game needs quite a lot and I would expect the raise to lead to 3/4♠-1 more often than to 4♠ making – but one can understand the raise.

Three Spades did indeed prove to be one too high, despite the lead of the king of hearts, which at least sorted that suit out. Hwang won the ace and cashed the three top spades then played the queen of clubs, which was won by Mak's ace. He returned the jack of diamonds and dummy's ace was knocked out and now it was just a matter of ducking the next club to cut declarer off from the thirteenth club in the dummy. Hwang had to lose a trick in each suit to go with the earlier club so was one down for -50 and 4 IMPs to Vincent Li.

Vincent Li won the match by 26-10 IMPs, 14.70-5.30 VPs, and were still very much alive in the qualifying competition.

Open Qualifying Round 10 – Geely Auto v West Java Open

With just two rounds to go in the Open qualifying stage China's Geely Auto and Indonesia's West Java Open were both under pressure, lying third and fourth in the standings with only the top two to progress to the knockout stages. Any significant loss in this match rated to knock either team out of contention, while even a good win merely meant that they would go into the last qualifying match still in contention.

The match proved to be a very low-scoring affair but there was still a fair amount of action.

For Geely Auto, Jian Feng Peng opened with a strong club and, when Erwin Lienanda overcalled

2♣, Qing Hong Zhou took one look at the vulnerability and decided to try for a penalty. He therefore passed and passed again when Peng's reopening double came around.

Zhou led the queen of hearts, ducked, and continued with his remaining heart to the ten, jack and ruff. Lienanda played a spade to the ten and ace and Peng returned a trump, the nine being covered by queen and king. Zhou cashed the king of spades then switched to a diamond. Peng won that and played the ace of hearts, Lienanda ruffing with the five and Zhou discarding his remaining spade. Lienanda cashed the ace of clubs then played winning spades and Zhou could ruff and cash the jack of clubs for down two and -500.

In the other room, West Java's M. Apin Nurhalim could open a weak no trump with the East hand and Paulus Sugandi transferred to hearts. That offered Shaolin Sun an easy entry into the auction with a 2♥ Michaels bid, showing spades and a minor. When Meng Kang converted to 2♠, no doubt with no great enthusiasm, Sugandi jumped to 3NT, which proved to be a comfortable make for +400 but 3 IMPs to Geely Auto.

Given the vulnerability, would it have hurt West to double 2♠ – he could always bid 3NT at his next turn if East did not want to defend? Two Spades doubled is a minimum of three down after the obvious trump lead and that could rise to down four if declarer slips up.

Both Easts opened 2♣, Precision style, but the respective Souths took very different approaches to their solid eight-card suits.

For West Java, Very Panekerego cuebid 3♣, asking for a stopper. Lienanda didn't have the requested club stopper but did have a long suit of his own and he bid then rebid it. Panekerego saw that his hand was useless except with diamonds as trumps so went on to 5♦. The defence cashed two clubs and Zhou then switched to the king of hearts to dummy's ace. Panekerego won that, cashed a few diamonds then led a spade up and Peng grabbed his ace so there was no guess (declarer rated to get it right anyway); down one for -50.

Kang, by contrast, gave up on the possibility of 3NT as he needed not just a club stopper but also stoppers in both the other side suits. He jumped to 4♦ and was allowed to play there. Again the defence cashed its club winners but then Nurhalim switched to his trump. Kang drew trumps then played a heart to the ace and a second heart, ruffing East's king. He was just trying to get an idea about the missing high cards, of course, and after a couple more rounds of trumps led a spade up and, when Sugandi played low, put up the king and had ten tricks for his contract; +130 and 5 IMPs to Geely Auto.

Both Norths opened with a natural weak two bid and both soon found themselves in game.

Zhou led a low heart. Lienanda rose with dummy's ace to take a diamond pitch on the king of clubs, then played a heart to the queen and king. The defence played three rounds of diamonds now so he ruffed, ruffed the third heart and cashed to ace of spades. Finally, a club ruff passed off peacefully and he was back in hand to draw the remaining trumps; 10 tricks for +420.

Given that this line required both black suits to behave, it would not have been ridiculous to run the heart lead round to the queen as, while that would go down if the king was wrong, it would make things much easier when the king was right. Anyway, the chosen line was just fine and, more importantly, successful.

Nurhalim led the five of clubs, third and fifth. Sun could see that he was going to need a lot of good fortune if clubs were five-one so played on the assumption that they were three-three. He won the ace, played two rounds of trumps ending in dummy, then took his diamond discard on the king of clubs and followed up with a club ruff. He could draw trumps, cross to the ace of hearts and cash three more club winners, making 12 in all for +480 and 2 IMPs to Geely Auto.

There were different approaches to the West hand with Sugandi showing his seven-card club suit and only giving heart preference at the four level, while Peng ignored the clubs and showed a constructive heart raise. Both Norths cuebid 3♥ to show a constructive spade raise. When Lienanda saw a 4♠ bid on his right he went on to 4♠, not sure whether he was bidding to make or as a save, and Peng doubled on the way out. Sun passed in Lienanda's position and saw his partner double 4♥.

Four Spades doubled proved to be quite straightforward after the singleton diamond lead. Panekerego won the jack and led the jack of spades and ran it, continuing with a second spade to the king and ace then leading dummy's heart up. He could ruff two hearts in the dummy so had ten tricks for +790.

Four Hearts doubled was less straightforward. Kang cashed a top diamond then switched to a spade for the king and ace. Sun cashed the ♠Q then led his trump, ducked to the queen, and Kang continued with a second trump to dummy's eight. Nurhalim played a club to the king, ruffed a diamond and attempted to cash the ♣A. That was ruffed and he was forced with a heart. He cashed the ace of hearts to draw the missing trump then led a low diamond to drop the now bare king, establishing his queen in the process. That was down three for -800 and a flat board, leaving two disappointed N/S pairs when it came time to score up.

Sugandi overcalled a slightly cautious 3♠ so Sun could show his hearts comfortably and, when Nurhalim's spade raise came round to him, could introduce his second suit, equally without feeling too much pressure. He was left to play in 5♣, against which Nurhalim led the ace of spades. Sun ruffed and led the queen of clubs and, when that held, a second club to the king and ace. With hearts coming in he was on the diamond guess for an overtrick and duly got that right by leading to the king so had 12 tricks for +420.

Peng overcalled 4♠ and that put substantially more pressure on Lienanda, who did what he had to do and bid 5♥. When Zhou bid 5♠ over that, Panekerego judged his king doubleton to be sufficient heart support so bid 6♥, and when that came back to Zhou he wasn't sure that he could beat it so saved in 6♠. That was doubled and a heart lead and club switch collected the four available defensive tricks for down three and -500, giving 2 IMPs to West Java Open.

Six Hearts (or indeed 6♣) can be beaten, but only by an opening diamond ruff, otherwise declarer has the chance to guess diamonds for his contract. The match ended in a 13-2 IMP, 13.45-6.55 VP win for Geely Auto.

Open Qualifying Round 11 – Zen v Vincent Li

The final round of Open qualifying saw an all-Hong Kong match between Zen and Vincent Li, the two leaders in Group A. The losers would need some good fortune to qualify, as the strong Indonesian team, Pertamina DKI Blue was close behind in third place.

When partner overcalls INT most players would pass with the South hand. However, it is surely true that if partner has a four-card major it will be easier to play in two of that major than in INT, hence Tony Lau's use of Stayman. Alas, his inconsiderate partner failed to deliver the hoped-for major and Lau had to struggle in 2♥ on a four-three fit. Peter Chun cashed the top diamonds then switched to a low spade. Lau could not know that this was from queen-jack and called for dummy's ace, rapidly following up with the ace and king of hearts then king and ten of spades. The news was not good – Chun won the ♠J, cashed the ♥Q, and could now also cash the ♠Q. Chun continued with a club round to the ten and ace and, after cashing the winning trump, Lau had to concede a club at the end for down one and –50.

In the other room, Samuel Wan left his partner to declare INT, which also looked to be an uphill struggle after the lead of the queen of diamonds. However, K.F. Mak won the king and ace of diamonds, W.K. Lai following with the two, and switched to a low spade. Once again, declarer was not sufficiently inspired to put in the ten. Karic Chiu played the ace and continued with king and ten of spades. Mak won and cashed the fourth spade and now tried a low heart. Again, Chiu tried to split the suit, winning the ace and playing king and another. This established dummy's eight as the seventh trick and Mak, not wishing to open up clubs for declarer, exited passively with his last heart. Chiu pitched a club from hand and Lai was squeezed between his club stopper and the ♦J. That meant an overtrick for +120 and 5 IMPs to Zen.

Chiu opened the North hand with a strong no trump and Lai's 3♦ overall shut out Wan, for whom double would have been take-out. With no entry to dummy, Lai had to give up a spade so came to seven tricks, three spades and four diamonds, for down two and -200.

Baron Ng opened 1♥ then made a game try and Lau put him in game as what he had looked to be pretty good. The contract was not a good one, given that Zen had bid to the three level so that bad breaks were possible and the ♠A was surely offside. However, Zen's bidding had painted a road map for Ng and he took full advantage, wining Zen's lead of the ♦K and drawing trumps in three rounds. Zen surely had a singleton club for his bidding and Ng needed it to be the queen. He led a low club towards dummy and it was the queen! Ng won the king of clubs and crossed back to the ♣A. Now he led a diamond towards dummy's ten. Zen won the jack and was caught. His only hope was that the king and queen of spades were switched around so he led a low spade and Ng's king was his tenth trick for an excellent +620 and 9 IMPs to Vincent Li.

Lau opened 1♣ as South, doubled the cuebid but when he got no life out of Ng left his opponents to get on with their 2♠ contract.

Ng led the three of clubs, ducked to the king. Lau switched to the three of spades to the ten and queen and back came a second club. Chun won the ace, took a second spade finesse and cashed the ♠A. He continued by cashing two more spades, pitching a diamond and a club from dummy. That put Lau under pressure and he threw the nine of clubs followed by the king to keep both red-suit holdings intact. Chun played ♥Q and, with a club winner in dummy, Lau had to duck. Now, however, a second heart to his ten left him with no escape, Lau played the ace of hearts next but Chun simply discarded a diamond and Lau had to give a trick to dummy's ♦K, Chun's eighth for +110.

Wan opened 2NT on the flat 19-count and Chiu transferred to hearts then left him in 3♥. The lead was the ten of clubs, ducked to Wan's king. He led a spade so Mak won the ace and led a second club. Lai won the ace and continued with a club to the nine and ruff and Mak exited with the nine of diamonds to declarer's queen. Wan cashed the ace of hearts, dropping the queen, then led a low heart to the jack and king. He won the spade return with the king, cashed the ♥10 and ruffed a spade to get to dummy to take the diamond finesse; nine tricks for +140 and 6 IMPs to Zen.

Mak did not have an opening bid in his style so passed as dealer and it was Chiu who opened as North, 2♥ being weak with hearts and a minor. Two No Trump inquired and 3♠ showed top end of the range with diamonds. Wan asked for key cards then bid the small slam. Again, there was a trick to be lost in each major so 6♥ failed by a trick and that was -50 and 11 IMPs to Vincent Li.

I must say that I prefer Ng's protective INT overcall to Chiu's take-out double on a hand with only a doubleton spade. Zen doubled INT and Lau used Stayman, just as he had planned to do had the double not come in. Ng responded 2♥ and played there. At the other table, Lai redoubled the take-out double and got a free 2♦ from Mak, enabling him to compete to 3♦ over the opposing 2♥.

Zen led the queen of diamonds against 2♥. Ng won the ace and played the king of spades. Zen won the ace and led a low diamond, ruffed in the dummy. Ng led a spade to his jack, ruffed another diamond and cashed the ♠Q, pitching his last diamond. He play3ed a trump next and lost just two top hearts and the ace of clubs, making nine tricks for +140.

Wan led the ten of hearts against 3♦ and Lai won and played two more rounds, ruffing. He next led dummy's remaining low diamond and Chiu split his ten-nine, a play which was to come back to haunt him and which was surely unnecessary. Lai won the ♦J and returned a diamond for the king and ace. He won the club return with the ace and exited with a club, ruffed the heart return and played ace and another spade and had to make the ♦Q8 in the ending for +110. Had North held the ♦109 instead of ♦102, the defence would have prevailed. Plus 110 meant another 6 IMPs to Vincent Li.

Mak made only a simple diamond raise over the take-out double and there was no temptation for East or West to compete any further. Two No Trump was cold and, after a diamond lead, was allowed home with an overtrick for +150.

Chun made the more aggressive pre-emptive jump raise and when that came round to Lau he took a shot at 3NT, figuring that this would need less from partner than would a spade game. The defence has to discard carefully in 3NT when declarer cashes five rounds of spades after a diamond lead but, if they are up to the task, the contract can be defeated. Zen saved against it, though his 3-3-4-3 distribution hardly suggested that this would be cheap. Lau cashed the king of diamonds to take a look then cashed two top spades before switching to the king of hearts.

That proved to be an error, as Zen played well to minimise his losses. He won the ace of hearts and cashed three rounds of clubs then ruffed the jack of spades before playing a second trump and when Lau won the ace he was endplayed. That meant that Zen had escaped for two down, -300, but the loss of 4 IMPs was not what he was hoping for when he bid 4  $\diamond$  in search of a swing.

Vincent Li won the match by 30-12 IMPs, converting to 15.15-4.85 VPs. As Zen had feared when he gambled on the final deal, his team was out, finishing third in their group behind Vincent Li and Pertamina DKI Blue. It would have been no consolation that the situation was not recoverable going into that final deal.

西	北	东	南
甘信立	陈伟胜	施晓	蓝元
			1H
X	4H	4NT	5H
—	—	X	—

南北方虽然红心极配，然而两手牌型都太均，要丢失 2S-2D-2C，宕 4 不可避免。深圳南港队+1100。

开室叫牌过程:

西	北	东	南
陈万义	陈胜洪	吴庭吉	沈佳祥
			1C *精确
—	1D	1NT	2H
2NT	4H	5C	X

沈佳祥对 5C 的加倍本意上是不想让搭档再叫，却获得了意外的效果...因为...现在这个 4 手牌的分配，东西方 6 阶低花是打不宕的!!

5CX+1，深圳南港-950，但仍然还赢 4 imp。

开室叫牌过程:

西	北	东	南
陈万义	陈胜洪	吴庭吉	沈佳祥
	1D	X	1S
—	1NT	X	2S

赛后，沈佳祥说，摊开牌就知道丢局了。他也很清楚，这手牌叫到局也不容易。实际在 48 个桌上，一共有 8 桌叫到 4S。

闭室叫牌过程:

西	北	东	南
甘信立	陈伟胜	施晓	蓝元
	1NT	X	2C
—	—	X	2S
—	—	3D	3S
—	4H	X	4S

眼花缭乱的叫牌过程！施晓的叫牌盒里加倍真不少！

甘信立首攻 HJ 到施晓 HA，施晓继续出 HQ，庄家 HK 吃进。小掉将到明手 SA，再继续小掉将，施晓 SK 吃到后继续兑现 SQ，再出 H2 庄家将吃。现在庄家手上全是黑花色了，只要处理好草花，定约就回家了。

也许是施晓的眼花缭乱的加倍让庄家走上了歧途?! 也许庄家认为施晓的牌一定是5431或6331(目前施晓红心和黑桃都已经跟出了3张), 为了防止西家草花偏4, 庄家最终选择了飞西家CQ!

有人会说, 南港队的运气也太好了! 其实

前面已经提到过, 这副牌叫到4S的桌一共有8桌, 其中有2桌4SX-1, 其余6桌都打成了!
