Facts Presented

The Tournament Director (TD) was summoned by North after finished playing the hand.

North claims that he will bid 2S if 1NT = NAT non-forcing. In addition, after that East's 3D shows 6+D, he will then take another line of play to make 3S instead of 3S -2.

East thought they played Transfer Advance and 1NT = 5+C constructive.

After (P) P (1C) 1D (P) 1NT (2S), East says she will bid 3D.

Director's Ruling

Opinions collected with the following conditions:

Case 1: Table auction, 1NT = 5+C, North plays 3S

Case 2: Table auction, 1NT = NAT (partnership agreement), North plays 3S

All declarers know to ruff with S9, assuming (likely) 6-2 D distribution.

However, 5-3 D possible due to 3D by West (in bidding).

Hence, mis-explanation of 1NT by West.

Consultation begins with

Situation 1: P (P) 1C (1D) P (1NT)

Players' consideration of other (possible) calls are also asked (and about what they are thinking) and what if with a weaker LHO (mixed team, an intermediate player). Players' choices include P (mainly), DBL, 2C, 2S

Situation 2: (P) P (1C) 1D (P) 1NT (DBL)

Table results stand (3S by N -2)

Consultation then starts with other choices:

A. (P) P (1C) 1D (P) 1NT (P)

B. (P) P (1C) 1D (P) 1NT (2C)

C. (P) P (1C) 1D (P) 1NT (2S)

The consultation returns too many possible outcomes. Therefore, an artificial score was awarded with the following ratios:

45% 3S N = +140

15% 3S N -2 -200

20% 3D E +1 -130

10% 3H E +1 -170

10% 4H E = -420

Reasons for Appeal

First of all, North has told the TD that 2S was taken out and then East said, 'Wait a moment, I need to alert 1NT'. After hearing East's explanation, North changed his bid to DBL. We do not understand why the TD has to consult 2S as what has been done should not be changed in our opinion. It was also not mentioned in the TD's facts provided, so we can only assume that the TD has forgotten this piece of information.

Secondly, North now played D to be in 5-3 break instead of 6-2, leading to a failing result at the table. If correct information is given, by no means North would have taken the wrong guess since West only showed a balanced hand and East voluntarily bid D on her own accord even under the current bidding sequence instead of choosing 2D over 1NT or 2C. We have also stated the line of play to the TD which would result in 10 tricks on the spot. We do not understand the 15% 3S N -2 results which is based on the misinformation given.

Thirdly, during the TD's consultation, North-South's teammates and East-West's teammates were first consulted on what we would bid if North has bid 2S after 1NT. I was astonished after knowing that the case happened at the other table and right after we have finished playing the boards. Also I was never told that 1NT means C, so I do doubt if the TD has given the correct information to players who got to be consulted at the same position, that is, whether East would only know what she remembered at the table instead of the actual agreement. In that case, why H were not bid at the table but would have been bid under some certain sequence? Also, as mentioned in another letter to the council, we have concerns about the definition of same class of players being consulted, and would like to raise this issue once again.

Finally, West has UI regarding the misinformation from East. Has the TD considered if the UI has affected his decision in saying that he would bid 4D in the 1C-1D-P-1NT-2S-3D-3S situation? And what are the major concerns that made West not bidding 4D in the current bidding sequence but the other? The TD has not asked West why he would bid 4D instead when West said ‘我梗係會叫’ after asking if West would bid after 3S. The question was asked after the match when the TD was discussing the case with our team. He said, I would also need to know if West would bid 4D (under a certain sequence) and found that West was at the bar area discussing the hand with his partner. We would like to know if this question ‘What would you bid?’ (instead of ‘What would you do?’) is a guiding question at that context. We do understand that TDs often ask players ‘What would you bid?’ meaning the same as ‘What would you do?’ but under the conversation at that moment, will it lead to a guiding question to West? In addition, the TD didn’t show any evidence in taking care of the possible UI which might have affected West’s choice as well. I think the TD might consider giving a fuller explanation to us to help us understand the difference in strength and length for East in these two sequences, which did not convey effectively at the bridge table during the match.

TD Comments on the above reasons for appeal

(1) About ‘2S was taken out’

North summoned the TD after finished playing the hand and this is NOT stated at the table. After the day, while the TD was tidying up, there was a long chat with the North-South team at the TD table, the other team was also staying around, chatting on their own. North-South stated that they mentioned about ‘2S was taken out’ during the chat. So, the TD’s comment: TD didn’t get this.

(2) Opinions on declarer’s play were collected.

When declarer knows 1NT = 5+C and the CT lead, all declarers (two actually) know that 1NT = 5+C was mis-explanation. They also state that there was no need for East to bid 2D after North’s DBL, and thus 2D = 6+D (very likely) though 5-3 D possible as West raised to 3D.

(3) No one bid 4D in other sequences.

They basically think that 1NT was overbid. West’s ‘我梗係會叫’ (4D) was not quite valid.

Comments by Opposing Pair

After the lead, the table fact has already contradicted to the original explanation. Therefore, the declarer should be able to work out the misunderstanding and the play line was his own responsibility. So, I suggest

 45% 3S +1 and 15% 3S -2 changing to 60% 3S -2.

Decision of Appeals Committee

The committee has discussed and agreed the following:

- There is misinformation.
- The committee is not convinced that the adjusted score complies to Law 12C1(b): 'seek to recover as nearly as possible the probable outcome of the board had the infraction not occurred'.

The committee has revisited the Conditions of Contest of this tournament and found that the committee should conduct the Review process only in this case. Hence, the committee does not suggest a particular ruling, but raises the points it found problematic in the case that the TD presented:

- East's mis-explanation of her partner's bid was evident to declarer at trick 1. North had then apparently taken an inferior line of play. The TD should have mentioned (1) whether the misinformation affected the play, if so, why (also, in this case, if the misinformation has affected the play, adjusting the score based on the whole line of play should be considered, not only at trick 5.); and if not, (2) whether the inferior line of play is an extremely serious error, as in Law 12C1(e).
- How the mixture of results concluded was unclear to the committee. It is doubtful whether the consultation process was done properly, and how the final weights were calculated was a mystery. Granting a significant proportion to 3H and 4H is not convincing to say the least, if no further reasoning is presented, given what has happened at the table. In the ruling process, it is important that the concept of Law 12C1(b) is followed: 'had the infraction not occurred'. In this case, East always thought 1NT = 5+C and the other three players knew the actual meaning of 1NT = NAT.
- The TD has mentioned to the committee that the weights of results are given in a way allowed by the scoring software. The committee found this argument unacceptable. The capability of the scoring software should never hinder the TD to do his job properly. Since this is a team match, an adjustment to the final IMPs would be a simple work-around.

- The TD had mentioned several times that there were “too many possible outcomes”. Noting Law 12C1(d), “If the possibilities are numerous or not obvious, the Director may award an artificial adjusted score.” While it is not required to assign an artificial adjusted score, some justification should be presented for not doing so.
- The time of delivery of the ruling is comparatively unacceptable. The case happened in July and the ruling was delivered in September. Though there is not yet a guideline on when the ruling of a case should be given, the chance of collecting all the necessary facts correctly decreases over time. For example, in the later stage of the ruling process, if there is new finding which needs players’ clarification, it is more likely the players have already forgotten after a long time. And in this case, some new points were presented by the appellants, these could be verified by the CCTV footage had the case presented in time. Whether North had taken out the 2S bid before East alerted was crucial in the ruling process, but now there are no other ways than applying Law 85A, which would have been unnecessary.

The committee would like to take this opportunity to remind all TDs to collect all facts promptly at the table before working on the consultation. During the consultation process, TDs are reminded to pay extra attention on their wordings such as ‘call’ vs ‘bid’ in order to avoid giving unnecessary directions given to the players unintentionally. The committee suggests the Board of Tournament Directors could consider to incorporate some guidelines in their TD training regarding fact collection and consultation. In addition, all players should fully disclose their partnership understandings, both explicit and implicit, to their opponents at the table, and to the TD when they are relevant as stated in Law 40A1.

Finally, the committee agrees that the TD has rooms to do better in the process. Hence, it was suggested to re-iterate the ruling process by the TD and the consultation should be done with the players of similar caliber and not consulted before. The deposit has to be returned.
